Women's athletics plan due

The head of women's athletics at West Texas State University is now preparing a proposal to upgrade her programs to enable the university to fully comply with the mandates of Title IX legislation.

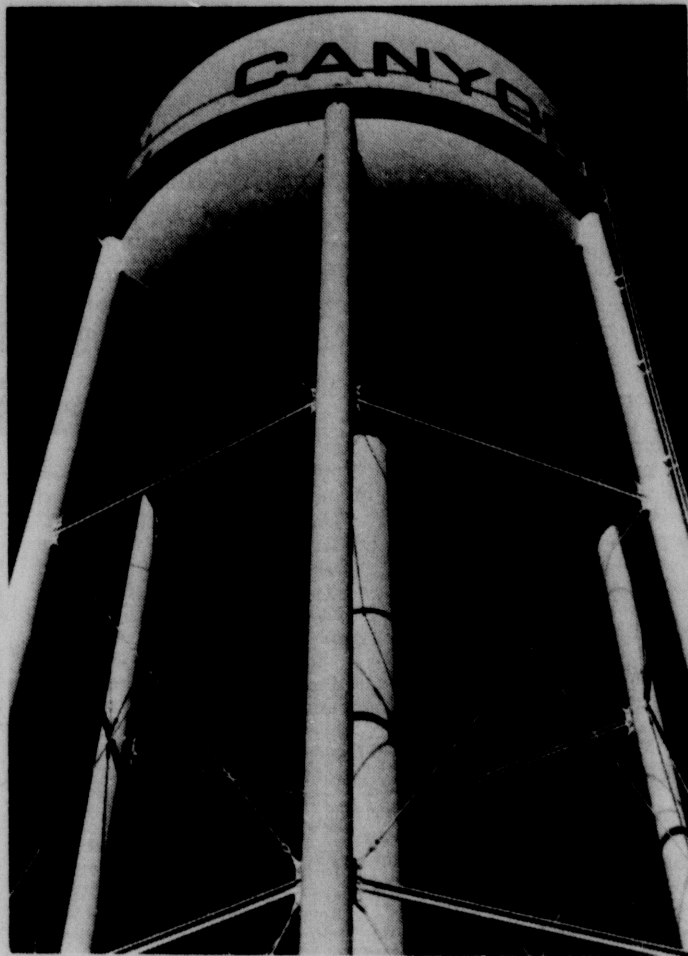

Allene Stovall was instructed during an initial meeting of a new WTSU committee recently to prepare her proposal for presentation at the Dec. 10 meeting of the committee.

Karen Johnson, WTSU legal counsel, said the committee, formed by President Lloyd Watkins to study university compliance with Title IX, will zero in on women's athletics in its meetings.

"We asked Allene to come up with a proposal on what she needs for women's athletics, what she needs for a good program," Miss Johnson said. "We told her not to shoot for the moon, but give us a starting place."

Miss Johnson said Miss Stovall was instructed not to limit her proposal to just financing of women's athletics, but to also include proposals for providing publicity and other programs.

Miss Stovall said recently the mandates of Title IX, which went (See ATHLETICS, Page 8)

As Canyon water towers rise above the landscape, so are water rates predicted to rise above current levels if city commissioners accept a proposal anticipated from City Manager Glen Metcalf early next year. Canyon water, sewer and sanitation rates have remained the same since 1958.

By Laurie Telfair
Residential water and sewer rates and trash collection fees are likely to rise next year if city commissioners approve a recommendation expected to be made in January by city manager Glen Metcalf.

A study of rates for water, sewer and sanitation is underway now at city hall, with Metcalf eyeing a recommendation to increase residential rates for the services.

Water rates, which have been in effect nearly 20 years, are no longer sufficient to meet the cost of producing water and providing funds for the expanded growth of the system, Metcalf said.

"These rates have been in effect since 1958," Metcalf said. "There is no way that they can be current and self-sufficient."

Metcalf said he did not yet know what amount increase he would recommend.

A number of factors have combined to raise the cost of producing water, Metcalf said.

"Inflation is one thing," he said. "And for another, the wells themselves don't produce as much as they once did so more wells are needed to produce the same amount of water."

Also, the rise in electricity costs over the years affects the cost of producing water.

"It is costing more to produce the same gallon of water than it did in 1958," Metcalf said, "and our break even point is no longer there."

Metcalf stressed two major considerations in studying rate increases: The need for a city to break even on providing services and the need to finance expansion required by growth.

"I think the experiences of New York have brought it to everyone's attention that there is just no sense in a city providing services at a loss," he said. "I guess where there was a surplus, you could do this, but no more."

Next, he said, the rates must be sufficient to finance expansion.

"What I'd like to do is to make the improvements needed to meet the city's growth as it is needed, rather than do a major capital improvements project," he explained. "A pay as you go plan."

Metcalf plans to recommend in next year's budget two additional wells, estimated to cost $120,000.

As Canyon grows, the entire water and sewer system must expand, he said. In addition to more wells, new transmission lines and storage facilities will have to be added.

Additional state and federal requirements for waste treatment up the cost to the city for sewer service, Metcalf said. A requirement last summer to chlorinate the effluent from the waste treatment plant cost the city $11,000 for a chlorinator, plus the additional cost for daily chlorine.

"We can see requirements continuing to come up," he said. "It may be something like 1982 when no city will be permitted to discharge into a public stream. That will mean finding some way of reusing the water. There are many things that place a load on the cost of providing water and sewer."

"What I'm trying to prevent is, at a later date, an all out bond issue to provide what could be provided a little at a time," Metcalf said.

Canyon's water, sewer and sanitation rates are low, compared to other cities its size in the Panhandle, Metcalf said.

"We've got figures back from other places that bear this out one hundred percent," he said.

The city charges $1.50 a month each for sewer service and trash collection. Both the rates have been in effect since 1958 also, Metcalf said.

Water rates are $3 for the first 3,000 gallons; 60 cents per 1,000 for 3,000 to 6,000 gallons; 40 cents per 1,000 for 6,000 to 15,000 and 35 cents per 1,000 gallons for over 15,000.

One of the things Metcalf is looking at is the practice of pricing water on a sliding scale for usage.

"The rates encourage large water users," he said. "I think that is something that needs to be looked at."

"Water has become a precious commodity," Metcalf observed.

The city commissioners have just approved a rate increase to West Texas State University, after weeks of negotiations. A (See WATER, Page 8)

High school students, community hear reports

'If bond issue fails, we'll try again,' Jacobs says

If the $6 million bond issue proposal which Canyon school district residents will vote on Dec. 9 fails to pass, Supt. Jerry Jacobs told high school students Tuesday morning, the school board will have to wait awhile and try again to gain support for the issue.

Jacobs, speaking in a special panel discussion on the bond issue to Canyon High School seniors, said the district might have to build even more portable classrooms to handle overflow until a bond issue could carry.

"Our thinking has been to plan to provide facilities for a good education," Jacobs said. "Some people might ask 'could it be done cheaper?' Sure, but is it our responsibility to try to plan so the students can get a good education or so they can receive a mediocre education?"

"We think if we had a smaller bond issue we would be headed toward a mediocre-type education and away from what we believe is a plan for you to get good educational opportunities."

Jacobs appeared on the panel discussion for seniors, juniors and sophomores at the high school along with Phil Langen and Lois Hull, two local members of a district publicity committee for the bond issue, and Mrs. Ruth Holladay co-chairperson of the committee.

Student David Coronado asked pre-prepared questions of the panelists.

Mrs. Holladay told the seniors the panel discussion was important to them because many of them were over age 18 and eligible to vote in the bond issue election.

"Even though the school won't be built until you get out of school, you'll be helping to pay for any buildings," she said. "And, as remote as it may seem, some day you'll be parents and it will be your children attending the schools."

Other questions and answers were typical of the kinds of questions and answers included on a recent publication of the district which was sent last week to all taxpayers in the district.

Panelists noted, for example, that the bond issue would require a tax hike of 26 per cent just to service the bonded indebtedness.

They said current plans are to pay the bonds off in a maximum of 20 years.

Mrs. Holladay explained that the CISD has grown 1000 students in the past 10 years and 700 students in the past five years and the district administration anticipates that growth will continue into the future.

Three make first team

Eight Eagles on all-district squad

Eight Canyon High School Eagles have been named to the Class 1-AAA All-District team, Coach Deane Wright announced Tuesday.

Three Eagles made the All-District first team and five received honorable mention positions.

First-team honors went to Kenny Basinger at end; Wayne Robinson at linebacker; and Cliff Adams as offensive lineman.

Honorable mention honors were earned by Drew Hetzler and Bob Lee, on the defensive line, Joe Luquette in the defensive secondary, Len Schmidt at center, and John Prater at offensive end.

The 1975 All-District selections for the district were made recently when coaches gathered together and cast ballots for the various positions.

Wright, who just completed his first season as head mentor for the Eagles, praised the efforts of those who made the all-district squads.

He noted that Luquette, Hetzler, Adams, Schmidt and Prater will be returning to the Eagle squad for 1976.

His comments on the individual choices for all-district: BASINGER — "I think definitely he's the best defensive end in the district. He made very few mistakes all year long and was our best pass rusher. Nobody got around him and it got to the point that they didn't even try, which made it hard for him to look good."

Basinger not only played on defense, but also alternated with Jonathan Hull at the fullback slot on offense during the season.

ROBINSON — "Wayne was our leader on defense. He called all the defensive plays and he was the leading tackler in every ballgame. On our scoring sheets he was the leading scorer all year long. He's really dedicated. He had a bad knee that had to be taped every day but he never missed a day."

ADAMS — "He was the most improved player we had. We didn't anticipate he'd be a starter but he worked tremendously hard at learning to block and he became a fantastic blocker. His outstanding game was against Palo Duro and we made many, many yards over him. The best thing about him is that he's a junior and we hope he'll start from here and continue to improve."

Wright was disappointed that Hetzler and Lee, two defensive stalwarts on an Eagle team noted in district play for its tough defense, didn't make the first team all-district squads.

"I thought they were the best two defensive linemen in the district," he said. "I know I'm prejudiced but I didn't see anybody better than them."

The two tackles, Wright said, were the key to the Canyon defensive effort.

whether the university-wide committee should have the power to change rankings submitted by school and college committees or recommendations for faculty members who should receive tenure, promotion or merit raises.

The first issue is a direct result of the resolution passed Friday by the council, asking faculty members who desired to be evaluated by students to ask their department heads to hold the evaluation forms at department level until the controversy is solved.

The council objected Friday to the fact that the university committee voted earlier this month that each individual committee member would assign his own weight to student evaluations in determining the merit of a faculty member applying for tenure promotion.

The council had voted earlier this month to recommend to the committee that the student Council disappointed by meeting, WTSU boycott remains in effect

West Texas State University Faculty Council members were apparently disappointed at their meeting Monday afternoon with members of the WTSU Tenure and Promotion Committee and the council's request that the faculty boycott student evaluation will apparently stand until later.

The university-wide Tenure and Promotion Committee was to meet Tuesday afternoon to discuss the joint session held Monday.

Dr. Walter L. Shelly, chairman of the Faculty Council which last Friday urged faculty members to boycott the student evaluation of faculty until a compromise could be reached between the council and the university-wide committee, had no comment on the Monday joint meeting.

But, he said the council would take no action on the anticipated outcome of Tuesday afternoon's tenure and promotion committee meeting until following the Thanksgiving holidays.

"The concerted action of the faculty will remain," he said. "Nothing has occurred that has changed that at this time."

One Faculty Council member termed the Monday afternoon joint session "a disaster."

Shelly said the two bodies discussed two basic issues involved in a controversy which has raged on campus between faculty and administrators since last spring.

The first issue, he said, involved the question of whether the Tenure and Promotion Committee would "have absolute power or should guidelines be provided."

The second issue, he said, was whether the university-wide committee should have the power to change rankings submitted by school and college committees or recommendations for faculty members who should receive tenure, promotion or merit raises.

The first issue is a direct result of the resolution passed Friday by the council, asking faculty members who desired to be evaluated by students to ask their department heads to hold the evaluation forms at department level until the controversy is solved.

The council objected Friday to the fact that the university committee voted earlier this month that each individual committee member would assign his own weight to student evaluations in determining the merit of a faculty member applying for tenure promotion.

The council had voted earlier this month to recommend to the committee that the student evaluations not be given a weight of more than 50 per cent in determining the teaching effectiveness of faculty members.

In making their determination, the university committee rejected the council's recommendation.

The vote Friday to ask for the faculty boycott was a result of that rejection.

The council had also recommended (See COUNCIL, Page 8)

Empty Stocking Fund to aid Canyon's needy

"Empty stockings" within the Canyon Community will benefit from a Family Services Christmas-time collection which will be administered throughout 1976 to benefit families in their times of need.

"We know all of the hard luck stories don't hit at Christmas," says Mrs. Carmen Hernandez of the Canyon Community Family Services. Accounts at both city banks have been established to receive funds for continuing aid to those needing it within the community.

"Last year we helped 23 local families at Christmas-time — and otherwise most would have had a bleak holiday," related Mrs. Hernandez.

Ron Kershen is general chairman of the CCFSS organization and other officers include Janie Garcia, treasurer; Bill Stocker, schools liaison officer; Rev. John Wagoner, university liaison officer; Rev. Terry White, past president and chairman of the Canyon Ministerial Alliance; and Carmen Hernandez, projects coordinator.

Continuing services of the Canyon Family Services Organization within the past year have enabled two women with small children to obtain training in employment fields and thereby provide for their own families.

"We also heard about a family that came here for employment and were sleeping in their car because of the unavailability of both funds and housing," related Mrs. Hernandez. "We took the man, woman and three children and placed them in a motel temporarily, bought groceries and loaned them an electric skillet to make hot meals."

"The father is still working here and commutes from Amarillo where they were able to obtain housing," she concluded.

In recent months, the Canyon Family Services has been aiding a local mother who was deserted by her husband. The woman had been injured seriously in an automobile accident and was left with an artificial limb and young child to raise.

"Then she got sick and was in the hospital for surgery on the other leg," stated Mrs. Hernandez. "and the Family Services heard about her plight and stepped in to help the woman and her child meet grocery bills

Lair critical of proposal

A $750,000 water and sewer project could be junked or postponed, a Canyon developer told the city commission Monday night, if the city refuses to participate in a $25,000 sewer lift.

The commissioners tabled the discussion until the next meeting.

A.W. Lair, who told commissioners he planned to let contracts on Dec. 15 to extend his Hunley Hills subdivision across the creek to the north, asked that the city continue its policy of sharing half the cost of installing sewer lift stations.

City manager Glen Metcalf recommended that the city discontinue the practice, saying that "participation by the city has to be limited to some extent."

He pointed out that after the lifts were installed, the city has full responsibility for their maintenance and told the commissioners that the lifts must be replaced about every ten years.

If three new subdivisions opened next year that required lifts, Metcalf said, under the present policy the city would have to spend a third of its capital outlay budget for the year on participating in installation costs.

Lair contended that the city would benefit by the installation.

"I am going to spend $750,000 in putting in water lines, sewer lines, paving to extend Canyon's

Commissioners Want Revenue Money

Randall County commissioners defended their desire to obtain more federal revenue sharing money Monday, saying if the county doesn't get the funds the money will just go somewhere else.

Following a report from Commissioners Jim Fletcher and Dee Griffin on their recent trip to Washington to lobby for Congressional extension of the federal revenue sharing act, commissioners said in response to a question that they feel justified in accepting further federal funding to meet county expenditures.

"We've got to continue growth," Griffin said. "If there's no capital to work on then we've got a problem. I think we have a need for it right here. If we don't get it, it'll just be sent back to New York City or overseas or someplace else."

Commissioner John Fulgenzi said he backs the county's efforts to retain the federal program, which has brought $500,000 into the county treasury since the program was first started in 1971.

"It seems like people look to the federal government for a free ride," Fulgenzi said, "because they won't let local government assume the responsibility to tax for services. They look to the federal government for support and this is what's happening."

Griffin said, though, he'd like to operate county government without the need for federal revenue sharing funds.

"If they'd reduce their taxes in Washington and let us increase ours' locally then that would be better," he said.

Griffin and Fletcher reported they had a successful trip last week to Washington with more than 1000 other county officials from throughout the nation to lobby for the retention of the federal program.

So far, Randall County has spent about a third of its revenue sharing funds for salaries and other capital purchases and about two-thirds of the funds for purchase of land and a portion of the cost of construction for a new south Amarillo courthouse annex.

In other business Monday, commissioners:

*Agreed to insure the new South Amarillo annex for $500,000 and to review the possibility of assuming the annual premium payments for providing insurance for the county-owned junior livestock building.

*Set Tuesday as the day to begin moving offices into the new South Amarillo annex.

*Hired a new assistant district attorney, Dean Roper, to replace Wes Clayton, who has gone into private practice in Amarillo. Roper is a recent law school graduate and will be salaried at $12,000 per year.

*Took no action on a new ambulance contract for the Canyon Ambulance Service. Commissioner Paul Lindsey reported that he had not yet heard from the service on his proposals for a three-year contract.

Enrollment Open For Adult Classes

Enrollments are still open for the Adult Basic Education Classes being offered in Canyon according to the instructor, Thelma Ruth Childs.

"We've been averaging an attendance of 15 each week but keep our enrollment on an open basis so that others can begin at any weekly class," she stated. The classes will continue through April and are held from 7-10 p.m. on Tuesday nights.

Those interested in the classes may contact Mrs. Childs for further information about the classes or visit any Tuesday evening by entering Rex Reeves Elementary School Building at the north driveway entrance.

Two Initiated By Psi Chi

Miss Janet Oppe and Jay Bryan, both West Texas State University students from Canyon, have been initiated into Psi Chi, the National Honor Society in Psychology.

Miss Oppe, a 1974 Canyon High School graduate, is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Hubert Oppe of 2408 12th Avenue. Bryan is the son of Dr. and Mrs. J. Manly Bryan of 2 Bramblewood Lane. He is a 1972 graduate of Canyon High School.

Psi Chi was organized in 1928 under the sponsorship of the American Psychological Association, Washington, D.C., to recognize scholarship in the field of psychology.

Dwarf Beans Growth Is University Study

Will dwarf field beans grow better if the seeds are planted close together or farther apart? West Texas State University freshman Susse Jones of Canyon has spent the last seven weeks of her plant science lab conducting an experiment to find out.

"This was a population study of dwarf field beans," she said. "I planted the seeds one, two and three inches apart in six-inch and 12-inch pots to see which would grow the best."

"It didn't turn out quite like I expected," she continued. "The ones that were planted the closest in the small pots seemed to be doing the best. And it was the same with the larger pots."

Plant science greenhouse experiments are designed to make students more aware of plant production principles and the methods and procedures of carrying out a controlled experiment, according to Dr. Ron Thomason, professor of plant science and lab director.

The students plant their crop seeds in groups of pots in the WTSU greenhouse. One group, the control group, received only light and water, while the other groups might receive varying levels of nutrients, herbicides or other cultural practices. Each week the students return to observe and measure the progress of their plants as they grow. At the end of the experiment, the students harvest, dry and weigh their plants to determine yield as affected by treatments.

Miss Jones, a plant science major, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Jones of 1219 3rd Avenue, Canyon.

Science Awards Given To Three
Three plant science majors at West Texas State University have been awarded $200 scholarships from the North American Plant Breeders.

Steve Wilkins, Raton, N.M., sophomore; Chris Rink, Floydada senior; and Danny Bradford, Floydada sophomore, have been awarded the scholarships on a competitive academic basis.

Headquartered in Berthoud, Colo., the North American Plant Breeders is a subsidiary company, concerned with the wheat breeding program in the United States, of Rothwell Plant Breeders in Europe.

The awards were made possible by Dr. Larry Robertson of the NABP and a graduate of WTSU, said Dr. Ron Thomason, associate professor of plant science.

Wilkins resides in Ponderosa Apartments No. 109 and Bradford lives at 2522 8th Avenue in Apt. 17 in Canyon. Rink resides at 4100 S. Georgia in Amarillo.

Geography Taught New Way

Dr. Robert Sawvell, head of the West Texas State University Geography Department, has begun plans to initiate audio-tutorial education for geography courses.

Sawvell plans to develop an extensive lab to complement classroom discussion and activities in world geography.

The lab, designed to give students insight into geography, will include slide units, projectors and cassettes.

"The major objectives of audio-tutorial education is to provide the student with the 'see' as well as the 'hear' in the educational process and give added insight into material and ideas presented in class," Dr. Sawvell says.

Visual impact, Sawvell believes, is the key to understanding various geographic areas. Many students, often with little exposure or experience outside the immediate geographic area, find it difficult to understand and to interpret the material presented in the classroom.

"I can think of no better way to help overcome this exposure handicap than through an audio-tutorial laboratory," says Sawvell.

Sawvell received a Faculty Venture Fund grant that will enable him to purchase the needed equipment for the labs.

Dr. Sawvell recently attended a meeting of the National Council for Geographical Education, in Toronto, Canada, where he became acquainted with the techniques and procedures of audio-tutorial education in other public schools and universities.

Audio-tutorial education is not a new concept for teaching but it will provide the necessary insight into geography and supplement classroom instruction, according to Sawvell.

The audio-tutorial system will be complete in the late spring or early fall of 1976.

The Army War College current affairs panel from Carlisle Barracks, Pa. will present two seminars on current issues within the military for audiences at West Texas State University.

The seminars will be held Dec. 3 at 2:30 p.m. in Room 206 of the Activities Center and at 7:30 p.m. in the Activities Center ballroom.

The panel, now in its seventh year, was established to encourage a dialogue concerning national security matters of current interest to the Army, the academic community and other interested audiences.

Panel members include Col. Donald P. Shaw, a member of the Department of National and International Security Studies at the War College. A 1954 graduate of West Point, he holds degrees in public administration from Harvard and in political science from Pennsylvania State University.

LTC William F. Carroll, Corps of Engineers, holds MS and PhD. degrees in civil engineering from the University of Illinois. He has served in the U.S., West Germany, Korea and South Vietnam.

LTC William R. Lee, Infantry, served recently as executive officer to the commander of U.S. Army in Europe. A graduate of Wilberforce University, he is completing requirements for a master's degree in public administration.

LTC Donald S. Pihl, Armor, has served as military assistant to the Secretary of the Army. He is an industrial relations graduate of the University of California and earned a master's degree in marketing from Berkeley in 1964.

LTC Robert S. Poydasheff, Judge Advocate General's Corps, is a graduate of the Citadel, with a bachelor's degree in political science, a master's degree in international relations from Boston University and a juris doctorate from Tulane. In addition, he studied at The Hague Academy of International Law.

LTC William G.T. Tuttle, Jr., Transportation Corps, is a graduate of West Point with a master's degree from Harvard Business School. He most recently commanded a battalion in Germany.

The Tramp, played by J.P. Allen (right) holds the attention of Peter Steeles and his wife in "Dust of the Road," a one-act play to be presented to the Canyon Classroom Teachers Association.

Entertain Teachers With Drama

Drama students from Canyon High will entertain teachers at a

Dec. 2 meeting of the Canyon Classroom Teachers Association. Teachers will meet at 4 p.m. at the CHS auditorium.

A one-act play, "Dust of the Road" will be presented, starring Allen Shankles, Wendy Hunnicutt, J. P. Allen and David Coronado.

A quartet composed of Laurie Davidchik, Laura Ratliff, Rick Mantooth and Phil Barnes will sing a selection of Christmas songs and Janet Malzahn will present "Dorothy Dumb's Christmas Shopping."

Robena Johnson, left, goes against Wayland Baptist College Flying Queen champion, Marie Kocurck, during last week's basketball clinic held on the Wayland campus. Nearly 4,000 students and their representatives attended the all-day session. The Queens, defending AAU and NWIT champions, annually sponsor the clinic for aspiring basketball players.

Professors' Works Are In Print

Four West Texas State University faculty members published a total of seven articles in the August, 1975 "Texas Journal of Science."

The journal is a quarterly publication of the Texas Academy of Science, which is divided into sections on physics, mathematical sciences, earth sciences, biological sciences, social sciences, environmental sciences, chemistry and science education.

Dr. Vaughn Nelson, WTSU Physics Department head, was primary author of "Tornadoes in the Southern Plains." Co-author of this article was Kenneth Brehob, formerly of the WTSU Department of Geography. Nelson also joined former WTSU physics graduate student Kenneth J. Jones to author "Inexpensive Differential Thermal Analysis with Semiconductor Temperature Detectors."

Chemistry Department Head G.A. Crowder contributed "Vibrational Analysis of Chloromethyl Thiocyanate" and "Calculation of Barriers to Internal Rotation for Torsional Frequencies."

Dr. George Asquith, associate professor of geology, wrote "Late Magmatic Adularia From Cavities in Camptonite Sills - Sacramento Mountains, Otero County, New Mexico" and "Origin of Optical Zoning in Adularia."

Professor of Biology William Cooper authored "Phytoplankton Succession in a Maturing Northwest Texas Reservoir (Lake Meredith)" with Charles E. Newton.

If you are fairly young, self employed and reasonably successful,

YOU CAN SAVE ON TAXES AND RETIRE A $100,000 AIRE !

For Example—on income of—	$ 5,000.00	$ 7,500.00	$ 10,000.00
If you start at age 35 and put aside yearly—	750.00	1,125.00	1,500.00
When you are 65, you will have saved—	22,500.00	33,750.00	45,000.00
Accumulated FNBC interest* will add—	65,626.85	98,440.28	131,171.16
You can retire at age 65 with a fund of—	88,126.85	132,190.28	176,171.16
Annually for 10 years you receive (based on quarterly withdrawal)—	12,767.82	19,151.73	25,523.00
TOTAL Retirement Fund and Interest—	$127,678.20	$191,517.30	$255,230.00

*Based on 7 1/2% compounded daily.

Under our new Individual Retirement Account, you can now put 15% of your income—up to $1500—in a personal retirement fund, deduct it from your taxable income for this year and pay no taxes until you retire.

By then you'll be in a lower tax bracket, but if you start your fund now and continue it until you retire (at 59 1/2-70 1/2) you'll also be rich!

Check the example—and mail your first retirement deposit before December 31st.

Bird Checklist

Made For Park

Dr. Charles Smith, assistant professor of biology at West Texas State University, has assisted in compiling and reviewing a checklist of the birds of Palo Duro Canyon State Park.

The checklist, published in August, includes species of birds which have been observed either within park boundaries or that have been observed flying overhead.

Bird habitats of special interest to birdwatchers include the Riparian Woodlands along the Prairie Dog Town Fork of the Red River, grasslands and brushlands of the floodplain and valley of the fork, ponds along the wettest portions of the creek and the open, wooded scarps of the canyon, according to the list.

Possibility of bird sightings during the different seasons are listed with the species of the bird in the checklist.

Also involved in compiling the checklist were Kenneth D.
Seyffert of Amarillo and Peggy
Acord of the Panhandle
Audubon Society of Amarillo.

Student Help

For Farmers

A student and faculty member of West Texas State University may be able to help area farmers in early spring.

Dr. Leonard Wilson, assistant professor of plant science, and Jim Brockman, Canyon graduate, will complete a greenhouse study on soil additives in early spring.

The research project is funded by a $2,000 grant from Organized Research of WTSU.

Dr. Wilson and Brockman, a graduate student in plant science, are testing five commercially available materials for farmers to use on crops.

In a measured amount of soil,
Dr. Wilson and Brockman are adding commercial fertilizer, feedlot residue, composted feed-lot residue, soil activator and a mineral-rich clay product singly and in combinations to spring wheat plants.

A controlled temperature, humidity, light and moisture are necessary to keep constant for different results on the plants,
Dr. Wilson explained.

"We're trying to determine the difference in value of these additives in relation to crop production. We want to compare these products to each other for increasing yields."

Results of the research will be published, Dr. Wilson said.

He plans to conduct an identical research after the first one is completed.

Stretch Your Kitchen Storage

By BECKY HALL
County Extension Agent

Convenient kitchen storage arrangements will reduce the time, effort and energy homemakers spend there. But finding the best place for everything needed in the kitchen takes organization.

The best way to stretch storage space is to discard articles that are never used. Store frequently-used items in accessible places, and put less-frequently-used items in the harder-to-reach spots.

Having a definite place to store each kitchen article saves time and energy because less searching and reaching is required, and everyone who uses the kitchen should know where things go.

Group items together that are used together — and store them near where they are first used.

For example, sugar, shortening, mixes, bowls and measuring cups belong together at the mix center. Potholders, turners, and stirring spoons should be stored near the range.

A bright, shiny kitchen seems to radiate a "homey" feeling, and a clean stove is an important part of it all.

To keep your gas range sparkling and avoid frequent long, drawn out scrubbing, follow these tips for daily stove care:

*Wipe up food spills when they happen. If grease and food residue are allowed to build up, they'll be more difficult to remove. After each use, when the range has cooled, squirt all enameled parts with a degreaser and wipe with a damp sponge to get rid of sticky dirt quickly and easily. If food has burned on, scrub with a plastic or nylon mesh pad — do not use a metal pad which can scratch enamel.

*Remove burners, grates and drip pans if food has been spilled onto them. Drip pans can be cleaned easily by wiping with degreaser and sponge and rinsing under clear water — if food has burned on, use a mesh pad instead of a sponge. Burners and grates should be soaked in hot sudsy water to which degreaser may be added. Grates may need scouring to remove burned on food.

*When replacing burners, grates and drip pans, test each burner to make sure it lights. If any of the holes in the burner are clogged, they can be cleared with a piece of thin wire.

*Clean the broiler after each use to prevent a build-up of sticky grease. Remove the tray, squirt with degreaser, wipe with a damp sponge or mesh pad and rinse. When the broiler has cooled, wash inner surfaces with degreaser and hot water.

Similar Homecoming Next Year

Homecoming activities at West Texas State University for 1976 will follow the same pattern as this year's schedule with the addition of a Homecoming queen.

Members of the Homecoming committee met Thursday to evaluate this year's Homecoming and to plan for next year's activities.

A bonfire, carnival, parade and barbecue will become a part of Homecoming for next year when the Buffaloes meet McNeese State College of Lake Charles, La. at 2:30 p.m. Oct. 30, 1976.

Russell Moore, assistant professor of military science; Ray Silva, Activities Center program director; Lynn DeGeer, Resident Hall director; Jim Campbell, athletic business manager; Frank Castleberry, director of the AC and Jim Brockman, Residence Hall Association.

'65 Class Reunion Set During Holiday

The class of '65 will be conducting a Thanksgiving class reunion beginning Friday evening, Nov. 28, at the Canyon Community Center, 300 16th Street.

Registration begins at 6:30 p.m. and the gathering should include a lot of reminiscing for the '65 CHS grads, their spouses, and families.

On Saturday, the group will have a family picnic at Canyon High School and will wind up the weekend with a dinner and dance Saturday night at the Hilton Inn Ballroom in Amarillo.

Class members home for the holidays are encouraged to participate in the reunion committee.

Members of the committee include Weldon Trice, committee chairman and assistant dean of Student Life for Men; Capt. Had a party? Or giving one? Tell The Canyon News about it. Telephone 655-7121, or stop by the News office on the south side of the square.

Bufs Face NTSU On Saturday

West Texas State's Buffaloes shoot for their second straight winning season Saturday afternoon when they tangle with downstate rival North Texas State in Denton.

Game time in NTSU's Fouts Field is 1:30 p.m., with the broadcast of the game on the Shamrock Network For West Texas Football starting at 1:15. Warren Hasse will provide the play-by-play action, completing his 19th consecutive year as the voice of the Buffaloes.

After evening its record with a big 49-23 win over Louisville in the Kimbrough Stadium finale, West Texas State takes one of the nation's better rushing attacks into the game at Denton. On the season, the Bufs are averaging 267.6 yards per game on the ground, the best figure in the Missouri Valley Conference.

But look what Tully Blanchard and Company have done during the past five weeks. In that span, they have an amazing 365 yards per game on the ground. At the same time, the Maroon has averaged almost 38 points per game in winning four of five.

The Louisville game was no exception. The Bufs, behind the ground artistry of sophomore Anthony Dogan, freshman Robert Mayberry, and junior Blanchard ran for 466 yards, high in the Valley this year. Mayberry led the way with 133 steps on just 10 carries, including an 80-yard touchdown run in the first quarter. That was the fourth longest in WT history.

Dogan, averaging right at 100 yards per game during the five-game streak, came through the 121 yards on 11 carries, and Blanchard gained 80 yards on just nine attempts. It was WT's best rushing night since the 1972 season.

Head Coach Gene Mayfield was quick to give much of the credit to the offensive line. "I'd have to say that was the difference for us," he said after the game. "We have been playing extremely well the past few weeks in the offensive line. We've been averaging well over 300 yards per game on the ground, and it's a tribute to our line."

On defense, senior John Ayers stands in line for MVC honors this week after leading the defensive effort against Louisville's Walter Peacock. Ayers was credited with 11 tackles and six assists, and picked up his eighth sack of the season when the Cardinals started to move offensively through the air.

While the Bufs were running past Louisville, North Texas waited on the sidelines with an open week. The Mean Green stands 6-4 in their first year as an independent with wins over Houston (28-0) and Tennessee

Aid Given On Charge Reply

The commissioner of the Missouri Valley Conference was in Canyon Monday and Tuesday to help Dr. Jack Bullock, West Texas State University's representative to the NCAA, prepare an answer to recruiting violation charges levelled against WTSU.

Bullock said Holmes was helping him prepare his answer to charges that the university's basketball program violated five NCAA rules in recruiting a player who later went to Kentucky to play.

Bullock also confirmed that a fiscal reassessment of the athletic program at the university might result in the university pulling out of the NCAA for membership in the NAIA. A move from the NCAA would mean the university would give up membership in the MVC also.

But, Bullock said the association move is only a possibility.

"We're trying to get our fiscal house in order," he said.

Army Rescue Team To Visit

The Fort Carson, Colorado Army Rescue team will be on the West Texas State University campus Dec. 1 at 3 p.m. to demonstrate various skills employed in bringing injured persons to care from virtually inaccessible locations.

The professional mountain rescue team will conduct their 90-minute demonstration in the area between the Old Administration and Education Buildings.

Included in the demonstration will be rappelling carries down the face of the Old Administration Building. These carries are designed to demonstrate the various techniques employed in moving injured persons down mountain slopes and their subsequent care.

Sponsored by the WTSU Department of Military Science in conjunction with the Amarillo Recruiting Command, the Rescue Team demonstration is open to the public.

Schola Madrigalis In Concert

Schola Madrigalis, composed of 12 voices, will be presented in a concert at 8 p.m. Dec. 1 in the West Texas State University Branding Iron Theatre.

Directed by Lee Kendle, Canyon senior, the group will perform "Day for Dancing," by Lloyd Pfautsch, with instrumental accompaniment and choreography. The selection is composed of five medieval carols.

The second half of the program will be conducted by Dr. Hugh Sanders, professor of music.

Selections will include "Alleluia" by Revicki; "Lo How a Rose E'er Blooming," in two arrangements by Prentorius and Distler; "Cantate Domino," Hasler; "Tutto lo di mi dici," Dilas; and "Allon Gay Bergeres," Costeley.

Tenors include Billy Talley, Amarillo junior and Fred Mays, Canyon senior, and in the bass section are Kendel Jeff Stevens, El Paso junior; and Scott Herrington, Odessa senior.

New Teachers Are Learning To Instruct In Two Languages

West Texas State University has joined a growing number of Texas colleges which offer a bilingual education certificate program for elementary school teachers. The Texas Education Agency approved the program earlier this month.

TEA statistics state that more than 5,000 teachers trained in bilingual education will be needed in Texas in a two-year period. In 1973, the Texas Legislature passed a law which states that any school district with 20 or more students of limited English-speaking ability in a grade must provide bilingual education.

"It is a problem for a child to speak Spanish at home and then come to school and have everything in English," says Dr. Maria Tarrab, WTSU Modern Languages Department head. "The child is going to look dumb, but he is not."

"The idea behind bilingual education is to incorporate these students into purely English courses as soon as possible. It is to make these children speak English well and make them able to learn everything in English," she says.

The WT bilingual education program, in the Department of Elementary Education, is a 24-hour subject concentration field in which the teacher is certified. "Even if you have the experience, you need the certificate for working in the bilingual schools," she says.

Four semesters of college Spanish or an equivalent competency are needed to enter the program. The coursework includes Speech Phonetics and Linguistics, Literature of the Southwest, Spanish Linguistics, Latin American Culture, Language Arts for Bilingual Students I and II, and one course from Advanced Spanish Composition and Grammar, Racial and Cultural Minorities or Cultural Anthropology.

Riders Hold Elections

The Buffalo Riding Club held its regular monthly meeting November 13 and elected officers for the coming year with Rusty Jarman of Amarillo named as president.

Other officers elected at the meeting were James Kirkland of Amarillo, vice president; Joyce Jarman of Amarillo, secretary-treasurer; Leroy Lamb of Umbarger, arena director; Larry Wynn of Umbarger, roping chairman; Alfred Diaz of Amarillo, parade marshal; and Noel Long of Amarillo, pony express chairman.

The regular meetings of the

"The program is not only bilingual, it is bicultural," Dr. Tarrab notes.

Students interested in obtaining the bilingual education certification will be able to begin their course work this spring with Spanish Linguistics.

The goals of the program are to prepare the student to teach Spanish and English each as a first and second language in subject matter areas common to the elementary school, and to develop in the student an understanding of the nature of the problems that exist in a multicultural environment.

Buffalo Riders are held the third Friday of each month and include a covered dish dinner for the membership and guests. The club also participates in various parades, playdays and trail rides.

Residents interested in joining or learning more about the club and activities may call Rusty Jarman, 383-1468; Leroy Lamb, 499-2159; or Larry Wynn, 499-2601.

The club includes families and members from Canyon, Amarillo, Tulia and Umbarger and is open to all locals.

Math Professor Writes His Own Textbook

Bill Ambrose knows much about college algebra and trigonometry. He should — He wrote the book.

Ambrose, assistant professor of mathematics at West Texas State University, has written "Trigonometry: A Functional Approach." The textbook is in use at WTSU and in 21 institutions in Texas, Florida, Idaho, Nebraska, New York, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Missouri, South Carolina and Kansas.

Another book, "College Algebra," is currently in production and should be out within a year, Ambrose said.

Ambrose became interested in writing a textbook after helping a professor at Texas Tech University revise a trigonometry book.

After the initial preparation, it takes approximately two years to write each book, Ambrose said.

"The first book was the hardest to write. I didn't know how to organize. I was constantly changing things. There was less rewriting on the second book," he said.

"Writing the book has helped my classroom preparation and presentation," Ambrose said.

Ambrose, a 1959 graduate of Waco High School, received his bachelors and masters degree from Tech. He came to WTSU in the fall of 1967.

Youngsters Hold Fair

The home arts of the nation's early years were re-created last week by youngsters at Rex Reeves as the classes in the second grade wing staged a Bicentennial crafts fair for the rest of the school.

Exhibits included braided rugs and corn husk dolls, Indian jewelry made from salt paste and macaroni and paper canoes.

Using a family recipe, Mrs. Dorothy Lowry's class made lye soap and several of the classes churned butter, which they sampled with homemade bread.

Another exhibit included hand-dipped candles, made in the manner of 200 years ago. The youngsters included instructions so visitors could see how they made the slender candles.

The crafts fair was the first of several exhibits planned in celebration of the Bicentennial. Each month six classes will sponsor a display or program.

Taking part in the fair were the classrooms of Mrs. Dorothy Lowry, Mrs. Eloise Burgess, Mrs. Nora Dell Williams, Mrs. Maxine Sherrod, Mrs. Carolyn Byrd and Mrs. Betty Stoker.

Exhibits of the home arts from a by-gone era ranged from lye soap, made by the youngsters, to rugs they braided and butter they churned at a crafts fair held in celebration of the Bicentennial by the second grade wing at Rex Reeves.

Umbarger News Kids Gave A Potluck

BY REBA RAEF
ST. MARY'S CATHOLIC Youth Organization hosted a potluck supper for the parish last Sunday evening, in the parish hall. Following the supper, a Walt Disney movie "Greyfriars Bonny" was shown.

The C.Y.O. took this means to show their appreciation to their parents and the parish for the interest and help they have given the C.Y.O.

THE CHILI SUPPER and

Bingo, which is being sponsored by the Umbarger Community

Association, was discussed at the regular meeting last Thursday evening.

The supper will be held January 11th and will be followed by games of Bingo.
The volleyball tournaments were also on the agenda. There will be a local mixed tournament on January 31st and anyone who would like to participate should call Shirley Payne at 499-2825.
The Open tournament will be held on March the 4th, 5th, and 6th. The Association would like to welcome any volunteers to help put the tournament over and you may call Ernie Stocker, if you'd like to help.

BERNARD HARTMAN, LEWIE Raef, Jr. of Pampa, Ed Albus, Bill Lancaster and Don Nelson from Amarillo returned late Sunday from a fishing trip to Lake Amistead near Del Rio. They had pretty good luck, the fish were biting good, and they brought back quite a bunch.
We are looking forward to eating the ones they gave us. Thanks, fellas!

BILL AND FRANCES Gerber spent the weekend in Dalhart, where they attended the wedding of their son, Kenneth, and Miss Lynetta Melius, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Melius of Dalhart.
The marriage vows were repeated in the People's Chapel on Saturday afternoon, with Father Kevin Hand, of Dalhart and the Reverend Marcus Adair, of Canyon witnessing the vows.
The Gerbers also attended the rehearsal dinner, which was held on Friday evening.
We offer our congratulations and best wishes to the bride and groom.

WE WOULD LIKE to say "Happy Anniversary" to Mr. and Mrs. J.G. Batenhorst, who will observe their 64th wedding anniversary on Friday, November 28th.
WE HAVE SO many things to be thankful for in this Thanksgiving season, that it would take a long time to name them, and we are grateful for them all. We wish each one of you a happy Thanksgiving. Reba.

Bridal Shower Fetes Miss Debbie Taylor

"I'd rather explain higher gas bills than why you don't have gas."

Your natural gas bill is higher. And, you have every right to know why.

One reason is lower temperatures brought on by winter.

The main reason, however, is simply that you are paying more for natural gas. Because we are paying more. This chart shows how much:

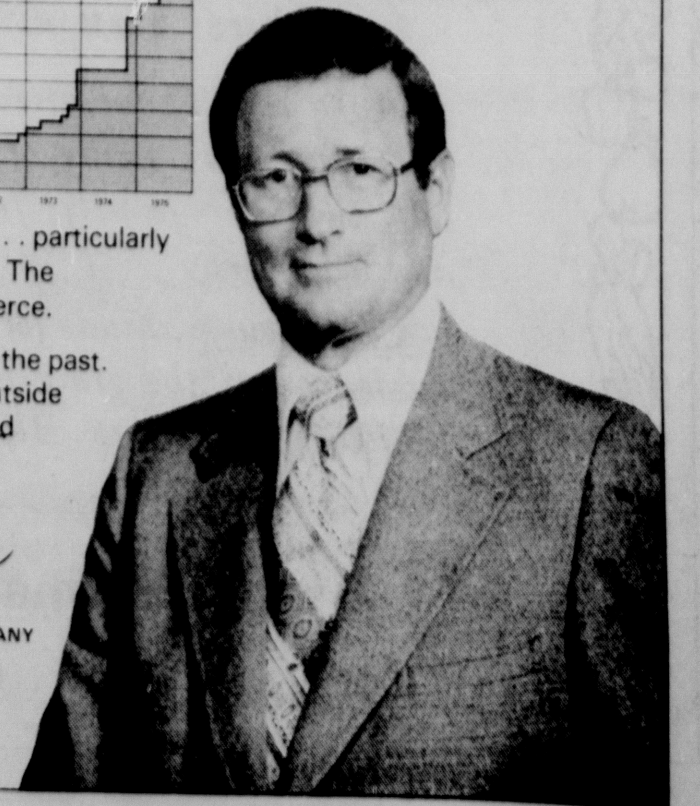

This increase hurts both you and Pioneer. It adds to your bill and to our cost... a cost for which Pioneer is not entirely compensated. It is passed through without mark-up or additional charges.

Why does gas cost more? Competition... particularly from petrochemical and other industries. The competition for gas has never been so fierce.

We will have to pay more for gas than in the past. But by working together, and without outside interference, you'll have the gas you need today and in the future.

growth across the creek with no participation whatever from the city. Not only will that increase the taxable base of the city over the next two to three years period by over $3 million but you start your sewer meters as soon as the lines are installed and the city starts getting income immediately," Lair said. "You have as much to gain as I. And without your sharing, it makes the cost prohibitive."

Lair told the commissioners that he might abandon or postpone his plans to develop the area beyond the creek if the participation policy was not approved, because, he said, he has a very narrow profit margin.

Mayor Manly Bryan suggested that the city commission look at the entire question of participating in development costs at all, which would include paving of street intersections as well as sharing the costs of sewer lifts.

"Canyon's biggest industry is growth and the building of new houses," Bryan said. "The city doesn't help other businesses, except the university, by giving it lower water rates. This (sharing sewer lifts costs) is the same to me as paving street intersections. Should we do that? Should we do nothing at all? I don't know."

Earlier, the commission approved reimbursing Lair for paving of an existing intersection for which he was billed. But they tabled until the next meeting when city engineer Bill McMorris could be present, discussion of reimbursement for water pipe which Lair contended was oversized for his needs in Hunsley Hills.

Lair asked for reimbursement on the two items as "a matter of principal."

"I was turned down on the big expense of bringing a big pipeline from the west part of the new ordinance, passed at Monday night's meeting, set the rate at $.3871 per 1,000 gallons, with the rate to be reviewed every two years. The previous rate had been in effect since 1960.

Metcalfe sought the hike to WTSU to bring the selling price in line with the cost of production.

"It is quite evident that over this period of time cost of water production has increased drastically and the existing rates no longer are sufficient to cover the rising costs," he wrote in a memorandum recommending the rate increase.

The new rate was calculated by a formula that involves actual operating costs for administration, distribution, production, and bonded indebtedness. All the costs are figured at 100 percent, except for administration and distribution, which is figured at 75 percent of the actual cost. The lower rate is justified, Metcalfe explained earlier, because administration and distribution to the university are more simple and less costly than to other users.

For some years, the water and sewer fund accumulated a surplus, of which $520,000 was spent last year on the civic complex. A reserve of $200,000 was retained in the fund.

However, according to Metcalfe, the years of surplus are over.

mended this month that the university committee not be allowed to alter the rankings of faculty members in order or priority for promotion and tenure issued by school and college committees.

Shelly has characterized the issue of weighing of student evaluations as the basic controversial issue in the problem of determining faculty merit for tenure and promotion purposes.

While Shelly would not comment on the substance of the Monday discussion, Dr. Darrell Munsell, a council member, indicated he was dissatisfied with the meeting and the response of the university committee to the council's proposals.

Munsell said the two groups spent an hour and 40 minutes discussing the weight to be given student evaluations and "we got no there really."

a junior who played defense two years, will be "a great player next year."

"He dedicates himself to doing a good job," the coach said. "He's always there carrying out his duties."

Schmidt was another surprise to Wright early in the season.

"He's another kid I didn't have any idea would be a starter," he said. "He's outstanding. He's not big but he's quick, he gets a guy real quick."

Wright characterized Prater, another returnee next fall, as "a big kid with a lot of raw talent."

and medical care."

"And a friendly neighbor (who was only a teenager herself) opened her home to the woman and her child and took over the responsibilities there," concluded Mrs. Hernandez. "Of course, this woman will continue to need aid throughout the coming year too."

Local residents have been asked to contribute to the Canyon Family Services Organization's "empty stocking" fund to aid those less fortunate at Christmas-time and in times of need throughout 1976.

city under the Hereford Highway," he said. "This is a small item but I feel it is a question of fairness," he said.

The commissioners also called for a public hearing Dec. 15 to consider a rezoning request from Lair to construct townhouses in Hunsley.

If the rezoning is approved, the 42 units will be a pilot project for the state for townhouses built under a Farmers Home Administration program.

"It's the first of its kind they've awarded in Texas and they're not making any more commitments until these are built and occupied," Lair told the commission.

"Most of the surplus built up many, many years ago," he said. "I think the rates have been insufficient for a number of years now."

Yet, on paper at least, the surplus remains. According to figures published in the city budget and audit reports, revenues continue to outstrip expenditures.

During the fiscal year of 1972-73, water and sewer revenues amounted to $103,823 more than expenditures. In 1973-74, revenues amounted to $402,964 while expenses were $240,255 for a surplus of $162,709. Last year, revenues exceeded expenses by $146,705.

However, Metcalfe explained, the general fund is not self-sufficient, and water and sewer funds are used to balance the budget.

"All cities transfer monies from one fund to the other. We don't make any money from the fire department or the police department," he said. He estimated that the city lost $30,000 a year on trash collection.

"You have to look at the whole budget," Metcalfe said. In this year's budget, proposed revenue amounted to only $791 more than proposed expenses.

And, Metcalfe pointed out, the city has not expanded its water system in the last few years.

"If we had drilled those wells we'd like to drill this year, plus the transfer of funds to the general fund, then there wouldn't be a surplus," he said.

"I believe in a balanced budget," Metcalfe said. "We're at the point now where we either increase our revenues to pay for services, or we dip into the reserve."

into effect last July, will force the university to provide more funding for women's athletics.

Currently, the university is funding women's athletics with about $23,000 per year. The funding is approximately the same as in 1974-75, when the first initial thrust into funding of women's athletics was made by the university.

Miss Johnson said the committee also discussed other university areas which must comply with Title IX provisions.

She said she asked administrators in the various areas to review their policies and provide the committee with copies of all policies and a statement that the university in that area is complying with Title IX rules.

Title IX is federal law which relates to discrimination against students or employees based on sex. It prohibits any such discrimination and provides that local school districts and universities comply with the mandate to avoid discrimination in hiring, in admissions, in scholarships and in athletics.

Article Published

West Texas State University Biology Department Head Horace Bailey has published an article entitled "Aspects of the Occurrence of Aspidobothrid Parasites in Oklahoma Naiads" in the September, 1975 Proceedings of the Oklahoma Academy of Science.

Principal author was Edward N. Nelson of the Department of Natural Sciences, Oral Roberts University, who was assisted by ORU undergraduate Janet K. Richardson of California.

"This is an attempt to understand the population dynamics of two parasites, both of which can live in the same host," Bailey said. The article also looks at the overall interactions between the host, the parasite and the environment.

Bailey's research was done at the University of Oklahoma Biological Station.

The Tuesday morning sessions with students were part of the thrust of the publicity committee's campaign to inform the public about the bond issue.

A community meeting was held Tuesday night for residents of the district to ask questions of school administrators.

Another community meeting is scheduled next Tuesday night.

Willson Lecturer Named

Michael Novak, well-known author from New York and a consultant for the Rockefeller Foundation, will deliver the 29th Willson Lecture at West Texas State University March 30-April 1.

Novak, a Catholic layman, has served as associate director for humanities at the Rockefeller Foundation and as executive director of EMPAC, Ethnic Millions Political Action Committee.

He has had books published in nine languages, including "Politics: Realism and Imagination," "The Experience of Nothingness," "Ascent of the Mountain," "Flight of the Dove," and "The Rise of the Unmeltable Ethnic."

Novak has taught at Harvard, Stanford, Union Theological Seminary, Old Westbury and with Ivan Illich in Cuernavaca, Mexico.

He was a journalist during the 1972 campaigns and later as an aide to Sargent Shriver and George McGovern. Novak was also active in the resistance against the draft and the Vietnam War.

Novak has served as a consultant for AT&T, IBM, and leads a seminar in television criticism for Aspen Institute. He was one of the judges for the National Book Awards for 1971, and has been a juror for the Dupont Awards in Broadcast Journalism since 1971.

Biology Field Trip Taken

West Texas State University students Gail Fial, Mary Heare, William Miller and Stephanie McKown, all of Canyon, were four of the 10 students participating in a biology field trip to southern Arizona recently.

The students, who are members of a plant ecology group, traveled to Tucson, Ariz. to visit the Arizona-Sonora Desert Museum, which features live plants and animals.

Under the direction of Dr. Robert Wright, WTSU biology professor, and co-sponsor Raymond Stone, also a WT biology professor, the group made several expeditions into the desert and mountain regions of Arizona.

"The purpose of the field trip was to allow students to observe the vegetation in the desert and mountains," Dr. Wright explained.

The ecology-oriented students also traveled to the Santa Catalina Mountains, the Jornada Experimental Ranch and on the return trip, the New Mexico University Ranch.

On these various trips, Wright explained the background of the areas, the ecological factors and the kinds of experimentation underway at both ranches.

Thanksgiving: Remembrance That God Has Provided

BY MARY NEAL HENRY
I WISH YOU a Happy Thanksgiving and the ability to see over the obstacles in your life's pathway to count your blessings.

No holiday compares with Thanksgiving. It celebrates no battle, no birthday of a great man, no political revolution, no church ritual.

It is simply the act of thankful remembrance that God has not failed in providing another harvest for man's needs. Pray that you are worthy of that harvest.

THE FIRST AID course was well worth time and effort (and missing two Thanksgiving suppers). A big thank you to Kirk Williams for giving his time to teach it and to Bill Andrews for assisting him.

We watched films, practiced on each other, filled in workbooks and took tests. If you need patch-in' up, just feel secure.

Here's the bunch that learned how to fix you up: Andy Hand, Bill Whitlow, Vilo and Ernestine Danner, Barbara Danner, Gwynn Tuck, Judy Thompson, Jill White, myself and Netha and W.D. McCarley can-half way. They completed half the course, but due to conflicts, missed the last night.

The course would be a good one to teach everywhere. In fact, it should be compulsory. The right thing to do is relatively simple when you know what it is — but then knowing something always makes it simple. It is the ignorance that makes it difficult.

MICHAEL ALAN BAKER now weighs three pounds and one ounce. He was born November 2 to Shirley and Warren H. (Rusty) Baker in Amarillo.

Although Michael Alan remains in critical care, he is gaining well.

Happy grandparents are Sibyl and Quentin Gill of Happy and Mr. and Mrs. Warren J. Baker of Amarillo.

MEMBERS OF THE Happy Chapter of O.E.S. who attended the School of Instruction in Floydada last Thursday were Catherine Miller, Gracie Lee Tirey, Dora Ratjen, Ruth Mann, Lola Bowe, Willie Butler, Gladys Haley and Evelyn Shipman.

WHEN THE HAPPY basketball teams traveled to Silverton last Friday they brought home four wins. Happy Cowgirls won 37 to 36 and the junior Varsity won 28 to 24. Happy Cowboys won 55 to 51 and the Junior Varsity won 27 to 26.

OVER FIFTY ADULTS plus children attended the annual Thanksgiving Supper at Wayside last Thursday evening. It was held in the community building.

Arney Community held their Thanksgiving supper Thursday evening also.

Jowell Community held a Thanksgiving supper on Friday evening.

HAPPY COMMUNITY 4-H held their drawing for the turkey and ham in Happy Saturday afternoon. Jeanne Johnson won the turkey. Beth Cranmer won the ham.

Guy Walt Via was chairman of the project and Angeliue Henry was co-chairman.

THE MCCLURE THANKSGIVING Dinner was held Sunday in Plainview at the home of Billy and Helene McClure.

Families attending were Anna Mae and Hobart McManigal of Happy, Dorothy and Boone McClure of Canyon, and Carl and Ila Hudgins of Lubbock.

MR. AND MRS. Sam Moore have a new boy, Michael Anthony, born in Swisher Memorial Hospital on November 19. Michael weighed seven pounds and nine ounces.

He has brothers, Sammy, James, Jimmy and Johnny and a sister, Loretta.

HAPPY CHAPTER OF THE OES held their annual Thanksgiving Dinner Saturday evening at the Masonic Hall.

Worthy Matron Catherine Miller welcomed the group and Worthy Patron Alden Mann added his appreciation for everyone's presence. He also asked the blessing for the evening.

Willie Butler, program chairman for the evening, presented a skit, "The Saga of Little Nell." Characters were Sam Williams, Willa Jane McManigal, Gracie Tirey, and LaVenna and Eugene Jackson.

The group then said the pledge to the American flag and sang the national anthem. Guy Faye Via presented the readings "I Am Old Glory" and "I Am The Nation" and LaNelle Todd sang "This Land Is My Land" and "God Bless America."

Willie Butler is serving the Grand Chapter of Texas this year as a member of the American Heritage Committee.

THE ESTHER SUNDAY School Class ate Thanksgiving Dinner all together Sunday noon in Fellowship Hall at the First Baptist Church. Ruby Vise is the teacher of that Sunday School Class.

WEEK OF PRAYER for Foreign Missions will be held daily beginning Dec. 1 in various homes in Happy.

RICK HITTINGER, BAND director of the Happy School system took a group of the Happy Cowboy Band members to the musicals at WTSU this week.

HAPPY AGRICULTURE CLUB met Thursday evening of last week. The fat stock show for Happy will be held on January 9.

Officers were elected to serve: President, Floyd Tipps; Vice President, Dickie Clark; and Secretary-Treasurer, Wendy Sims.

A.J. McCarley will be superintendent of the Show and Gene Shipman, assistant. Pete Odum will be superintendent of the lamb division. Floyd Tipps will be superintendent of the swine division and Larry Simons will be superintendent of the calf division.

THE UNION SALEM Home Demonstration Club met recently with Jean Fowler.

The program was on wood carving and cooking without sugar. The County Wide Christmas Fair was discussed.

Present were Glenna Crooks, Betty Tipps, Jessie Rector, Billie Pearson, Genevieve Nobile, Betty Womack, Judy Thompson, Ruby Pearl McCasland, Jean Fowler and a guest, Judy Carlisle.

The next meeting will be December 9 at the El Camino in Tulia.

RUTH AND ALDEN Mann will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary on Sunday afternoon, Dec. 7, 1975. They will

RUG HOOKING is one of the crafts that link the past with the present and fifth graders in Mrs. Marilyn Warren's class at Rex Reeves have found it is fun too. The rug with the Bicentennial motif was designed by student teacher Mrs. Beth Reynolds, who has taught the youngsters the art of rug hooking and the students are so taken with their project that Mrs. Warren estimates that at least 150 minutes of work is done on the rug daily as students rotate in groups to hook. Here, (from left) Kathy Plain, Howard Schram, Rodney Barrett, Andrea Curlee, Mrs. Reynolds and Jolette Adams work on the rug and then show the design taking shape on the topside.

WTSU Student Evaluation Forms Have Been Revised

West Texas State University students were to use revised questionnaire forms last week when they began evaluating teaching effectiveness of their instructors.

Revisions in the questionnaire include omitting some of the questions from previous forms and reworking the statements to conform to a new rating scale, according to Dr. Jimmie Green, chairman of the Subcommittee on Student Evaluation, University Tenure and Promotion Committee.

The new scale substitutes the terms outstanding, above average, average, below average, poor and not applicable for levels of agreement and disagreement.

"It is thought that the new scale will provide more meaningful answers for the student to express his perception of the instruction in a course," Green said.

The form provides 15 basic questions with five additional answer spaces so the individual faculty member has an opportunity to develop optional questions which he or she feels are relevant to the effective teaching of a particular discipline. The questionnaires will be processed by the WTSU Computer Center after final grades have been received by the registrar's office.

"About 90 per cent of our faculty use the student evaluation forms," Green said.

The questionnaire provides space for the student to express his opinion about the major teaching strengths and/or weaknesses of the instruction. The instructor will review and consider these comments when the questionnaire is returned to him in the spring semester.

The revised form also has a space for the student to sign if he desires. This is optional and the student may remain completely anonymous. This revision was provided because some students have expressed a desire for the opportunity to sign and some instructors believe that written comments are more useful if they know the source, Green stated.

The University Tenure and Promotion Committee encourages all faculty members to participate in the student evaluation process for the purpose of improving the educational experi-

THANKSGIVING

We Cherish The Legacy From Our Forefathers

The Winter of 1620 marked the arrival of the first Pilgrims. They were met with the hardships of a bitter New England winter.

With Spring came the knowledge of productive farming. Encouraged, taught by native Indians, they sowed their first corn crop.

In honor of a fruitful year, a day of Thanksgiving was proclaimed — to show gratitude for their blessings.

Tradition Links Us With Our Past As We Give Thanks

BY KAROLYN FARMER
I THINK IT'S really exciting to realize that this year for the 199th time, citizens of the United States of America will join together in celebrating a very special day.

precious memories.
So it is with our traditions as a nation. Each Thanksgiving Day should be a time when we feel a renewed sense of patriotism, knowing that we do belong to the greatest country in the world.

Our forefathers worked hard to provide for their families, improve their communities and build a strong nation. Most of us still follow in that same tradition.

inspired and encouraged Americans throughout the past 199 years is still present with us today.
As you join together with your family and friends this Thanksgiving, remember to show your gratitude to God through prayer — for this is truly the greatest tradition we can pass on to our children.

We also appreciate the many parents and teachers who prepared and served the food, not to mention all the clean-up work afterwards.
And, of course, we're grateful to all of you who bought tickets and attended the chili supper. Without you, it would have been a lot of hard work for nothing.

The council also approved a new ordinance concerning water safety on Lake Tanglewood. Another ordinance which was passed prevents the shooting of firearms within the village limits.

teacher. Each record has a different beat and kind of music (some were country and western, and others were rock-type music). They go through the multiplication tables, one number at a time.
It was really a pleasure for me to see so many children so excited and "hung up" on math.

For Friends and Family... Home and Hearthside... Be Grateful!

Pause in the midst of the fun and the feasting... reflect for a moment or two... and count up the things you're glad about.

Probably they're the same things that inspired the Pilgrim Fathers: food, fellowship, and a sense of caring, sharing and purpose.

MRS. TERRY (LINDA) Robinson was among the 50 Sweet Adelines who presented their annual program last Saturday. The show was entitled "Celebrate America."

All the ladies looked beautiful in their red, white and blue costumes and dresses as they saluted our nation in song. Tom Robinson was one of the children who passed out tiny American flags to the audience at the conclusion of the program.

Bill Rawlings of Canyon served as the emcee for the show, as well as performing with the Sweet Adelines. Bill is also the coach for the Amarillo chapter of Sweet Adelines.

Mrs. Bill (Margaret) Rawlings was chairman of the show, which was thoroughly enjoyed by the standing-room-only audience at the Amarillo Little Theatre.

And last, but not least, my mother, Dorine Howe, is president of the Sweet Adelines Chorus for this year.

If you like to sing and would be interested in joining Sweet Adelines, they always welcome new members. Just go to St. Paul's Methodist Church in Amarillo on Tuesday night at 7:30.

AND WHILE WE'RE still on the subject of tradition, the traditional (and annual) Gene Howe Chili Supper last Friday night was really great.

Sarah Edwards was the efficient (and hard working) chairman for the event. (Sarah's husband, Billy, was the unofficial co-chairman). Both Sarah and Billy put in many, many hours of hard work and deserve a great big "Thanks" for making the evening a success. Shannon and Jay Edwards also did their part in helping out.

KAY AND LOYD Morgan and children are among the newest arrivals to the Gene Howe area. The Morgans moved into their new home in Mescalero Park last week from Lubbock.

Loyd is employed by Northwestern Public Service and works at the Harrington Station north of Amarillo. Kay formerly taught belly dancing in Lubbock as part of the Western Texas Jr. College Community Service Program.

Misty Morgan is 12 years old and is in the 7th grade at CJHS. Steven, who is eight, is in Mrs. Stevens' second grade class at Gene Howe. Brent is five and is in Mrs. Harp's afternoon kindergarten class.

Kay is a native of Amarillo, while Loyd is originally from McLean. The favorite family activities of the Morgans include camping and fishing.

PRIZES WERE GIVEN last Friday to the children at Gene Howe who sold the most Chili Supper tickets. Shane Palmer was first in the A.M. Kindergarten and Grades 1 through 3 Division, and was awarded $5. Placing second in that division was Michelle Marrs, who received $3.

Darla Campbell received $5 as the first place winner in the P.M. Kindergarten, Grades 3 through 6 Division. Alan Cranfill won $3 for placing second, and Shelley Jobe received $2 as the third place winner.

Mrs. Elaine Trew's second grade class and Mrs. Jeane Miller's fourth grade class both won first place in the two divisions. The children in both classes will be treated to a sundae party to be provided by the PTA.

The prize money was awarded to the winners by Luther Lawless. Also present for the awards were Doris McKee, ticket chairman, and Carolyn Farmer, PTA president.

SYMPATHIES ARE EXTENDED to Mr. Leo Forrest, whose sister, Novella Stallings, passed away Nov. 13th in Hereford. Both Leo and Elizabeth Forrest attended the services which were held in Big Spring.

THE LAKE TANGLEWOOD Village Council met on Tuesday, Nov. 18th. The first order of business was to pass an ordinance and set up a court for the village.

Jim Thomas was elected by ac-

I was privileged to attend the council meeting and enjoyed meeting many of the Lake Tanglewood residents.

Those who serve on the Lake Tanglewood Village Council are: B.F. Block, Frank Smith, Mrs. Thelma Lofgren, W.H. Gattis and Moon Ott.

Mr. Leo Forrest is the mayor of the village, and Mr. Deane Watson serves as the council's attorney.

DOSS DUPUIS WAS in Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo for several days last week for a series of tests. He's now back home and reportedly doing much better.

Doss and Ellena and girls, Michelle and Susette, are all residents of Lake Tanglewood.

MARY JO SMITH'S classroom was filled to capacity when I visited there this past week. Gloria Taylor's students had brought their chairs with them from across the hall, and both classes were involved in a heated math contest.

Mrs. Smith's boys and girls are the official 5th grade Math Champs of Gene Howe School. They've even made a large banner announcing that fact, signed each of their names to it, and placed it in the hall outside their room.

Mary Jo's class, led by Dennis "Flash" Molone and Carol Rogers, remained the champs following the challenge by Mrs. Taylor's room.

During the contest, one child from each room worked a problem on the board. The student who finished first and also had the correct answer was awarded a point. However, if one or both students got a wrong answer, one point was deducted from their team's total score.

Mary Jo Smith's classroom is full of decorations for the season. One bulletin board announces that "November is Turkey Time" and is filled with pictures of turkeys which the children made using seeds, popcorn, etc. Some of the turkey pictures are also being displayed in the school trophy case this week.

Another bulletin board features a tall yellow giraffe and urges the children to "Stand Tall — Be Proud of Your School."

Other art work made by the fifth graders is displayed on the wall outside their room. They made abstract pictures by placing a glob of paint on a sheet of paper and blowing through a straw to make the paint go in all kinds of interesting directions.

After the math contest was over, I enjoyed listening as the children sang along to some math records played by their Lina is majoring in elementary education with a minor in English. She is president of the WT chapter of the Texas Student Education Association and last week she was invited into Alpha Chi honorary fraternity.

Lina's husband, Darrell, is an agriculture major at WT and is also participating in the ROTC program. Upon graduation, Darrell will enter the U.S. Army. The Cobbs hope to be stationed in Europe, where Lina would like to get a teaching job on one of the bases.

LATE HAPPY BIRTHDAY wishes to Steve Wilson, who celebrated his 12th on November 20th.

STEVE HORD, WHO is in Mrs. Miller's fourth grade class, spent one night at Palo Duro Hospital last week. Steve was the victim of a playground accident and was in the hospital for observation.

He is the son of Macky and Velta Hord.

THE 4TH GRADE girls

THE 5TH GRADE girls basketball team had a successful weekend of play. Last Friday they tied the team from Panhandle, 7-7. On Saturday they defeated Avondale by 9 to 6. They also won their game against Paramount by a score of 4 to 3.

Arland and Twana Arnett are the coaches for the 5th graders.

HAPPY "LATE" ANNIVERSARY wishes to Harold Knight and Mary Knight, who celebrated their special day on Nov. 22nd.

And also best wishes go to the Dennis Wilsfords, who will celebrate their anniversary on December 4th.

THE 6TH GRADE girls basketball team remains unbeaten following a close game last Saturday. They played Ridgecrest and won, 23 to 22. Their next game will be on December 1st at 7:00 in the Sam Houston gym.

LOTS OF LOVE and happy birthday wishes go to Ernestine Harp and Phyllis Hicks, who will both celebrate birthdays on November 29th.

"Turkey Trot" For Prizes

Junior high youngsters will race today for prizes and at the same time, provide canned goods for Thanksgiving for less fortunate children.

The third annual "turkey trot," a nearly one-mile race, is being held this afternoon at the junior high with prizes for the first 16 boys and girls to cross the finish line.

The entry fee is four cans of food from each runner. The canned goods will be collected and donated to High Plains Children's Home.

The Junior High Fellowship of Christian Athletes, sponsoring the event, is hoping for 1,000 cans of food. Canyon merchants have donated the prizes to be awarded.

Prizes include gift certificates, turkeys, hams, and services. Prizes for the first 16 boys include $10 gift certificate from Vance Hall; turkey, Taylors; turkey, Coopers; belt buckle, Thompson's Gifts; $5 gift certificate, Williams Et Cetera; sweat shirt, Buffalo Bookstore; jewelry, Mrs. Juanita Leith; $5 gift certificate, Anthony's; T-shirt, Wood Shop; Aidas shirt.

Schools Dismiss For Turkey Day

Canyon Public Schools will be dismissed at 2:30 p.m. on Wednesday for the Thanksgiving holidays and students will not report for classes until the regular hour arrives on Monday, Dec. 1.

Business offices of the school system will also be closed for the full holiday.

The school's tax offices will be closed on Thanksgiving Day but will be reopened on Friday for the convenience of those wishing to cast absentee ballots prior to the December 9 bond election. The school's tax office is located in the administrative building at 506 16th Street.

Carriage House; hair style, Buffalo Barber Shop; boot jack, Western Store; stapler, Haley Printing; two tube jobs, Humble Service; hamburger, french fries, cola, Sonic; statue, car wash.
